in their industries, solid financial performance, and better customer service than their competitors.

He teamed up with John Kallir, one of the founders of KPR, who had also saved materials from the period.

Force, which is first of all common to everything because it's the basis of all materials there may be important.